

Abstract

A camera and transmitter are mounted within a baseball base such that they do not interfere with the baseball game. The camera gathers images and the transmitter sends the video signal to a receiver. The receiver communicates the video signal to an editing board which can insert the images into a television or internet broadcast.